Wyandot Indians.
Wyandotte County, Kansas.

The Manuscript Diary or Journal of Governor William Walker, from November 30, 1849, to June 25, 1854.

This is by far the most important period covered by the Journals of Governor Walker, as it embraces the formation of the Provisional Government of Nebraska Territory, of which he was elected Governor. This was one of the most momentous movements in American history, very few others having produced such far-reaching consequences.

In my Wyandot Indian Collection are copies of all the others of Governor Walker's Journals.

This volume was given me by Mrs. Margaret Pipe, a Wyandot Woman, in the Wyandotte Reservation, Indian Territory, now Oklahoma, about the year 1897.
